

For almost 100 years, Flowers Foods has offered consumers a wide choice of delicious bakery foods that meet certain dietary needs, preferences, and lifestyles. That commitment begins with quality ingredients that meet all federal regulatory standards.

To help consumers choose, we support a single, nationwide policy for labeling products with ingredients made from genetically modified plants. Working across all our brands, we update packaging and website information when we make ingredient changes to our products.

Wheat, the main ingredient in our bakery foods, comes from non-GMO crops. Some of our bakery foods contain minor ingredients derived from genetically modified crops, such as soy, corn, sugar beets, and cottonseed.

Our Dave's Killer Bread products are certified organic by the USDA in accordance with the National Organic Program, as well as verified non-GMO by the Non-GMO Project.
